Join the Business Law Section

As the largest substantive law section in the Philadelphia Bar Association, the Business Law Section, through its many committees, promotes the objectives of the Association in the fields of corporate, banking, securities, intellectual property, municipal finance, and related areas of the law. The Section, made up of in-house, government and private practice business lawyers, sponsors numerous committees which provide important networking and continuing legal education opportunities for Section members.

The Business Law Section advocates legislative changes in Harrisburg under the umbrella of the Association. The Section promotes the interest of business law practitioners. For example, the Section was instrumental in pushing for the creation of a business court in Philadelphia.

It's easy to become a member of the Business Law Section. Just return the enrollment form, along with a check for the modest amount of the dues, and indicate which committees you want to join.
