The Philadelphia Lawyer magazine unveiling

Steve LaCheen and retired Judge John A. Geisz, former editors of The Shingle (above), unveil the first edition of The Philadelphia Lawyer, the Bar's expanded quarterly magazine, at a news conference April 21 at Bar Headquarters. At right, Chancellor Deborah R. Willig helps Richard H. Groves (right), president of Legal Communications, Ltd., and publishing agent for the Bar, open boxes of the first issue. At center is Richard G. Freeman, editor-in-chief of The Philadelphia Lawyer.

Re: Discussion with Codef DC

Spoke with Co-Def counsel Joe [REDACTED] told him that I am trying to piece together background info on this claim with respect to injury, liability etc. Said that this is 1st notice suit to him as well, so they have very little background info. Confirmed he ran into PC Tom Duffy at the courthouse who confirm Paraplegia injury.

Joe commented that this is a top notch plntf firm that tries a lot of cases and are very successful. Said that Tom Duffy just obtained a $10M verdict last week on a products related Para / quad case.

+ If the defendants know who is top notch, shouldn't you?

Refer your catastrophic injury case to the firm that has secured verdicts and settlements in the millions for our clients and referring firms.
